Preserving Our Family Heritage

By Shanna Jones

Floods, fires, earthquakes, hurricanes, war and other disasters—vital records for thousands of people are lost or destroyed every day. For many, the memory of their life vanishes with their records. You can help end this tragic loss.

Learn about a worldwide group of volunteers finding and preserving our family heritage. Every person matters. Every person makes an indelible mark on others. Every person is part of our global family and all who follow are shaped by those who came before. It is a bond that dwells deep within each of us. It is a heritage that must not be lost.

Millions can be saved. Vital records for millions of people from around the world have been carefully safe-guarded for generations. Now through a vast global community effort, these records are being digitally transcribed to freely share over the Internet.

You can make a difference. With only a few hours a month, you can join thousands of other volunteers who are finding and preserving our world family history. Getting started is quick and easy . . . and the rewards are timeless.

Free worldwide access to the indexes! That's right, free access to the FamilySearch Indexes will be available over the Internet and through your local Family History Center as soon as the first phase of the project is completed.
